

 n December 14, 2016, Laura and Alycia, who are sisters, volunteered with the North Valley Caring Services located in North Hills where they distributed food to homeless camps, trails, parks, and sidewalks. Laura and Alycia's goal was to develop relationships and offer services to those experiencing homelessness. This long and arduous process takes months and even years to make a direct impact on the homeless. Many people asked for jobs, blankets, socks, and feminine hygiene products. Laura and Alycia wanted to help immediately. Within the next week, Laura took action and sat in front of a Walmart for four hours asking for donations, only to received one box of tampons. These sisters decided to organize a donation drive and distributed donation boxes to local businesses, churches, and high schools. Their community engagement brought results and sparked a greater ambition to provide hope to others in need. They started Sisters on the Streets as a means to make an immediate impact for homeless women in need.

Sisters on the Streets is a movement. Through volunteering and participation in local events, there is a strong connection with the San Fernando Valley community. Laura and Alycia are working to take action, make a change and bring awareness to the stigma of homelessness and menstruation for generations to come.

So many women experiencing homelessness have to choose between eating or taking care of their feminine hygiene each month. Ridiculous, right? THE HYGIENE CAMPAIGN: Our mission to end the stigma of menstruation and to make a difference has brought us to The Hygiene Campaign. We have found success by working with high students in organizing donation drives and assembling hygiene packs for our outreach. Students can use these hours as their community project and the response has been amazing. If you are a high school student and would like us to bring Sisters on the Streets to your school please contact us!

MONTHLY OUTREACH: Homeless Connect Day is our monthly outreach activity and it has become a fulfilling means to connect with the community as well as help those in need. Every month we set up a table to organize products such as clothes and hygiene products throughout the event. Follow us on social media to see how you can be involved and volunteer to make an impact.
